

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

ABOUT

General Information

Role of the Treasury

Officials

Secretary

Deputy Secretary

Treasurer

Organizational Chart

Orders and Directives

Offices

Bureaus

Budget, Financial Reporting, Planning and Performance

History

Careers at Treasury

Eric Van Nostrand

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury for Economic Policy (P.D.O)

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury for Economic Policy (P.D.O.)
Eric A. Van Nostrand is Chief Economist of the Department of the Treasury. In this role, Eric leads Treasury's research and analytical work on economic developments and provides counsel to Secretary Janet Yellen.

He first joined Treasury in 2022 as a senior advisor on economic issues related to Russia and Ukraine. In that role, he helped design and implement the price cap on Russian oil, a novel piece of economic statecraft that enabled the continued supply of petroleum products to the global marketplace while also limiting Russian revenues to fund their war on Ukraine.

Before joining Treasury, he was Managing Director and Head of Research for Multi-Asset Strategies and Sustainable Investments at BlackRock. Earlier in his career, he was a staff economist and advisor to the Chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers, where he specialized in the U.S. macroeconomy as well as the global policy landscape.

Eric earned a JD from Yale Law School and holds degrees in economics and engineering from the University of Pennsylvania.