WestExec Advisors Names Former Deputy Treasury Secretary Wally Adeyemo as Principal

Washington, D.C. – March 25, 2025 – WestExec Advisors, a leading bipartisan strategic and geopolitical risk advisory firm, today announced that Wally Adeyemo, the former U.S. Deputy Secretary of the Treasury, has been named a Principal of the firm. A seasoned policymaker with expertise spanning national security, economic policy, and financial regulation, and experience in both the public and private sectors, he will support WestExec's clients as they navigate the increasingly complex landscape of the global economy.

Wally assumed the role of Deputy Secretary of the Treasury in March of 2021 and played a pivotal role in driving key initiatives of the Biden Administration. As Deputy Secretary and Chief Operating Officer, he led the implementation of the American Rescue Plan, which provided critical federal resources to communities across the United States and contributed to a robust economic recovery following the COVID-19 pandemic. Wally oversaw the government's use of economic tools in service of protecting U.S. national security, including financial sanctions and the work of the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States. And he managed Treasury's implementation of the Inflation Reduction Act, a landmark investment in the U.S. economy that advanced domestic energy security, lowered prescription drug prices, and improved government finances.

Prior to serving as the 15th Deputy Secretary of the Treasury, Wally served as Senior Advisor and Chief of Staff to BlackRock Chairman and CEO Larry Fink and as a Senior Advisor at the Center for Strategic and International Studies.
